DARIUS —S. yellow; F. lilac, margined white, with rich orange beard.	.20
DAWN (Yeld. 1911)—Our best sulphur-yellow. The general coloring is that of Flavescens , but it is unique in the way in which the throat is beautifully suffused with amber-yellow. Height 33 inches.	.75
DEJAZET (Vilm. 1914)—A superb bronzy flower.	5.00
DEMURE (Sturt. 1918)—A blending of madder, rose and copper that glows dully in the sunshine and turns to rose in the shadow.	.50
DIMITY (Bliss. 1919)—Pure white with faint veinings of blue on margins of both S. & F.	4.00
DOMINION (Bliss. 1917)—A wonderful Iris in a category all its own. Large flowers, the standards of which are Dauphon's blue or light bluish violet, large, erectly held, well developed, and slightly veined. The falls, of exceptional substance, broaden out at the base to a deep, rich velvety indigo-purple. In the throat there is a light veining of violet-purple on white ground. Very pronounced orange beard. Very broad blue-green foliage.	25.00
DONNA NOOK —S. dark lavender-blue; F. bright purple, reticulated white and brown.	2.50
DORA LONGDEN (Bliss.)—Flowers of good shape; standards pale lavender suffused with yellow; falls rich red lilac suffusing at haft and edged with yellow. A very richly colored Iris. Strong growing and very free flowering.	2.00

DRAKE (Bliss. 1919)—On the lines of Pallida Dalmatica , with well-shaped flowers of the palest Cambridge blue. Beautiful and free-flowering, most charming and distinct on account of the pretty coloring.	5.00
